About the Conference

This conference aims to bring together experts from different disciplines of agricultural and biological sciences. International conferences play a vital role in disseminating and sharing the advancement happening in the field of science and technology, for the development of the society. It acts as a platform to bring together the researchers and institutions in sharing their research findings. The traditional conferences require the researchers, scholars, students, scientists and common public to travel to the place of conference which demands investment of more time and resources and therefore many choose not to participate. Participation depends on financial support from the organisation, which is competitive and not available to all. Here we bring a platform for researchers to present their findings online and to discuss with peers on a real-time basis.

About the Society for Technology, Environment, Science & People, Kozhikode, Kerala

Science encompasses a systematic study of the structure and behavior of the natural and physical world through observations and experimentation. There is a close interrelationship between science and technology. Technology is basically a skill, art or ability used in the development of products. Scientific knowledge is used to develop technology and this technology is again used to develop science. Both science and technology are evolved with human civilization, as a result of our desire to acquire knowledge, solutions to the questions raised in our mind and to satisfy our quest for better standards of living. In every respect we are connected with science and technology in our day-to-day life. Science and Technology have solutions for almost all the problems.

This has been possible through dissemination and sharing of knowledge and inventions made in one part of the world to other parts. Faster dissemination is important to save resources and time of scientists. This facilitates development of newer scientific knowledge and advanced technology in a faster pace without having to work on those areas that have already been explored.

The society is based at Kozhikode, Kerala.
